Form Furniture is introducing itself with a banger of a debut – a trio of modern office storage solutions that we'd be more than happy to work alongside – a likely upgrade from what most of us are currently using at the office. Not only is the Stash Series sleek, functional, and high-quality, the modern workplace pieces are simple, adaptable, and priced affordably whether it be as a collection or à la carte.

The above traits are foundational tenets of Form Furniture, helmed by CEO and founder Jonathan Johnson. "My vision for the Stash Series is an extended study of continuous form, honest materials, and simplicity built on my years of practice and exploration in the field of architectural and interior design," he shares. Johnson's experience led to the realization that simplicity is the key to workplace productivity, and integral to Form Furniture's philosophy. "Simplicity is the holy grail of design, and I believe the Stash Series delivers at every level."

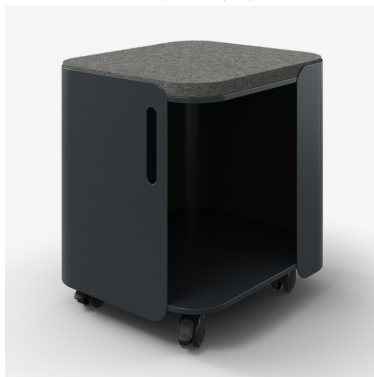

The Stash Series is a smart upgrade to old-school office storage cabinets and a vast improvement aesthetically. Comprising three pieces, the collection includes the Stash Cart, Stash Tower, and Stash Drawer made using powder-coated 1.5mm gauge steel with lockable casters. All three patent-pending elements are available in a surprisingly serene palette of Perfect White, Grey-Beige, Grey-Green, Red-Brown, and Graphite.

Both the Drawer and Cart include an optional add-on pad, available in Grey and Graphite, lending a quick spot to have a seat. Notably still, the Tower features three shelves to keep you organized, along with a range of accompanying accessories. And all three members of the family provide spacious amounts of storage within a compact footprint.
